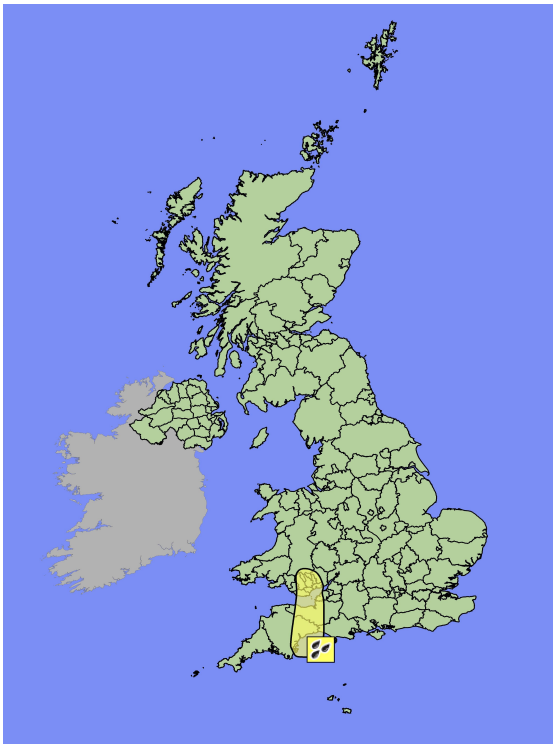
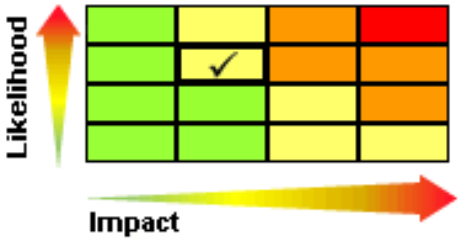
National Severe Weather Warning Service





CANCELLED

Chief Forecasters Assessment
With some heavy rain today to keep the ground saturated, and 25-50 mm in places on Thursday there is likely to be a lot of spray on roads, with surface water flooding a risk too. There is more than average uncertainty about the position and intensity of the rain band, and the warning boundaries may be adjusted after initial issue.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 05:00 on Thu, 10th Nov 2011 until 14:00 on Thu, 10th Nov 2011

Rain is expected to turn locally heavy over parts of southwest England and southeast Wales on Thursday morning, including the rush hour period, bringing the risk of surface water flooding. It will then peter out from the south, dying away later in the morning over southwest England, but probably not until early afternoon over southeast Wales.
